A MODERN HIGH SCHOOL KNOWS

MANY MOODS

BIOLOGY

BEST

During the Middle Ages, knights taught squires the arts of fighting and social decorum, and monks carefully copied and preserved the works of earlier civilizations. Then out of the Dark Ages emerged the humanists, whose philosphy encompassed the desire for free education for men of all ranks. In America, educators established free public schools and land grant universities and introduced educational television, guest speakers, and travel experiences. Too, educators recognized the importance of a social program; thus, proms, sports, plays, and concerts became an integral part of school life. Today's schools, utilizing the contributions of the past and the developments of the present, encourage the student to become an educated individual.

Mr. J. A. Lawrence, business manager; Mr. R. Roup, member; Mr. E. Rhodes, clerk; Mr. J. Shafer, director; Mr. N. P. Cupery, superintendent; Mr. F. G. Miller, treasurer; Mr. O. Johnson.

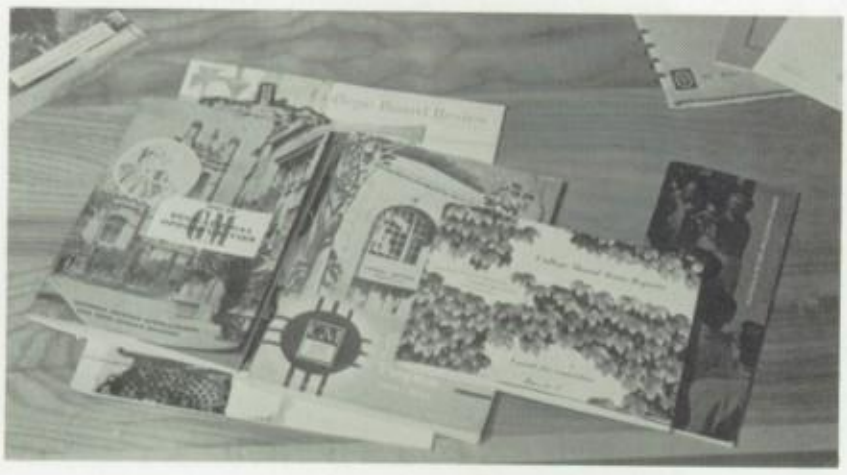
Surrounded by tools of their trade, accelerated reading students increased their reading comprehension.



"What college would be best for me?" "What's my aptitude in math?" "Can I get financial aid in my favorite school?" Questions such as these were heard daily by counselors who checked test scores, referred students to pamphlets and catalogues, and held conferences with individuals.

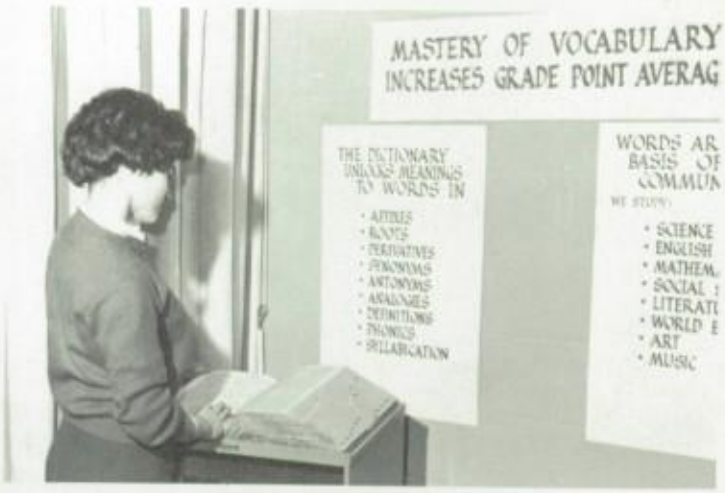
SPECIAL EDUCATION

MR. MORGAN

Counselors and students alike were benefited by the new, enlarged guidance offices.

READING AIDED LEARNING



Words, definitions, origins — the dictionary was an important supplement for the accelerated reading student.

Miss Severson guided her students into the adventures and joys of reading.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT EMPHASIZED

PREVENTIVE MEASURES

"Yes, yes, no, yes" — a volunteer helped Mrs. Jones with hearing tests.

"C-o-p-y-r-i-g . . ."

At one of the monthly meetings of the Future Nurses of America, Mrs. Jones and these girls posed for the Shield photographer.

RECREATION PROMISED NOON-DAY FUN.

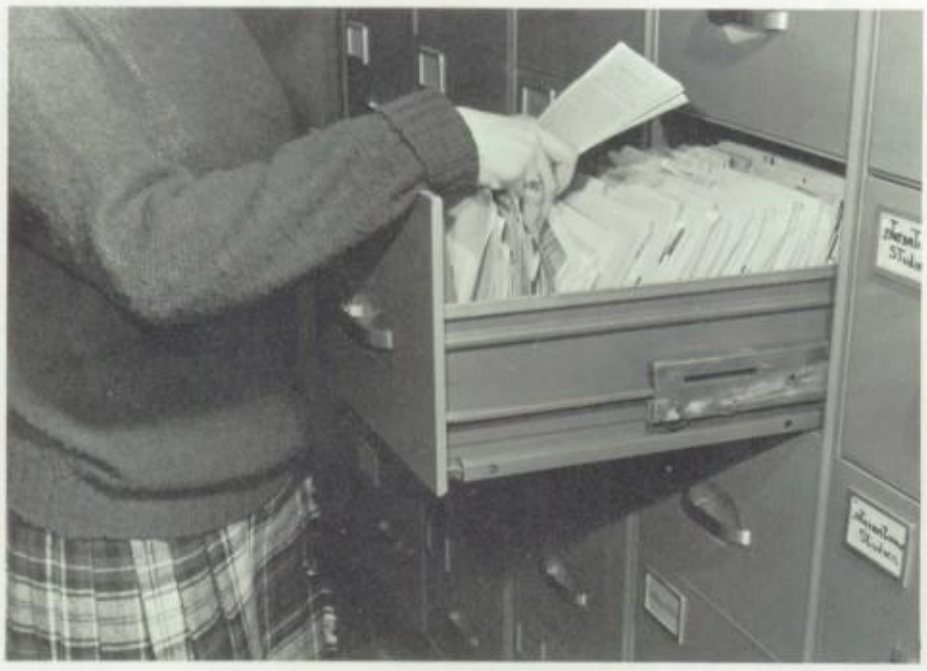
Though noon hour recreation was for relaxation, these girls charmed some boys into setting up the ping pong table for them.

MR. WADE

"Oops, I missed my cue!"

Intent on their game of table soccer, these boys weren't even distracted by the giggling of their enthusiastic scorekeepers.

THE LIBRARY OFFERED SILENCE AND STUDY



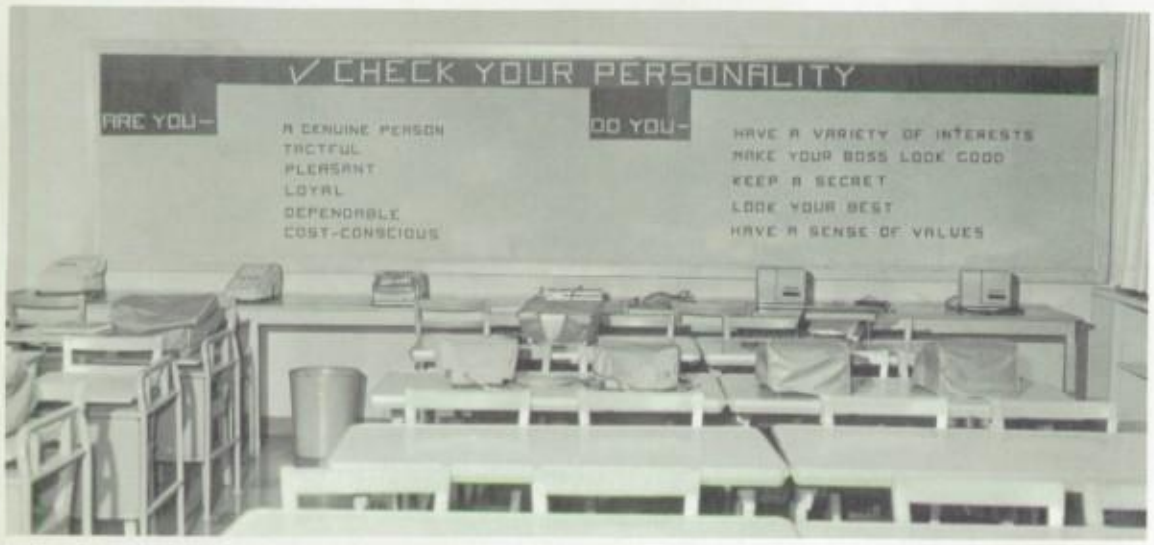
In the library files are the pamphlets, clippings, and catalogues for the freshman investigating his chosen career, bulletins for the college-hunting senior, and maps and editorials for the researcher in social studies.

Through the library bookslot passed the literature of the world.

MRS. CULVER

MR. WIBRACHT

THE BUSINESS DEPARTMENT EMPHASIZED ORGANIZATION, RESPONSIBILITY, AND PERSONALITY.



A class bulletin board emphasized the importance of a pleasing personality in the business world.

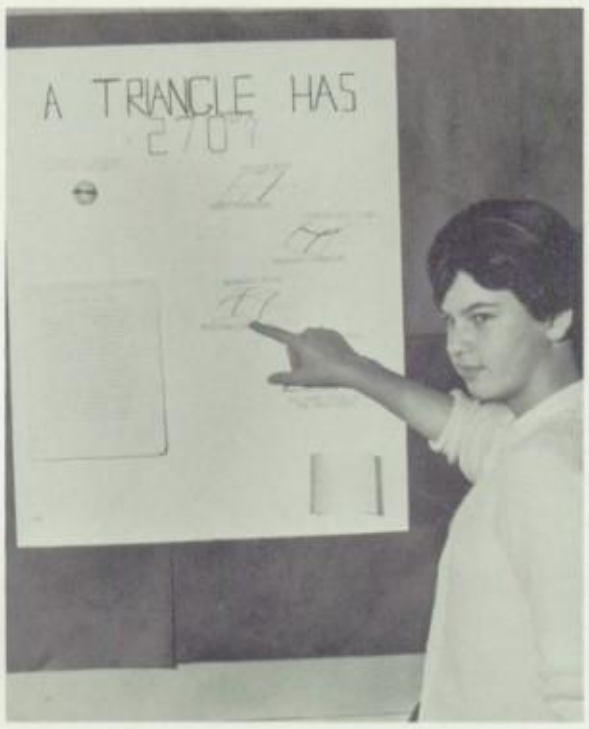
Seemingly meaningless characters in a notebook became for the student stenographer a business letter concerning a request for information about production schedules or shipment, a polite answer to a complaint from a customer, or an acknowledgement of materials received.



F. Sharpe demonstrates one of the many model and diagrams which are used to clarify equations, theorems, and postulates.

MATHEMATICS DEPARTMENT BROUGHT THE NEW POINT OF VIEW TO PROVEN THEORIES AND CONCEPTS

Visual aids add to the undertsanding of mathematical concepts.

Yuke, a mathematical card game, offers L. Grossman, F. Sharpe, B. Samson, and B. Chapman an opportunity to practice solving proofs.

MR. BENTON

MR. DAILEY

MR. FISCHER

MR. GROMME

Absorbed biology students listened as Mr. Liebherr demonstrated the method of measuring the relationship between an electrical stimulus and the response of a frog muscle.

SCIENCE EXPLORED THE KNOWN AND UNKNOWN WORLDS

In a scientific experiment, chemistry students followed directions for neutralization.

MR. LARSON

MR. LIEHBERR

MISS LINNEY

MRS. MAZANETZ

The music of castanets and records, the excitement of banderillas, the beauty of the mantilla, fan, and dancing dolls became significant through the understanding of Spanish, through the enchantment of español.

The dash of a Cossack's hat and boots, the probing thoughts of the Russian writers, the dignity of the samovar, and the points of view of Russian magazines became important through the knowledge of Russian, through the promise of pro-rooske.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE OPENED THE DOORS TO MANY CULTURES.

The grace of Venus de Milo, the power of a Caesar, the might of a Roman catapult, the glory of the chariot, the implication of a Roman lamp, the moods of records, and the honor of the laurel leaf gained meaning through the study of Latin, through the allure of latina.

The frivolity of a checkered tablecloth and wine bottle, the gayety of a Toulouse-Lautrec poster, and the ideas of the French authors became meaningful through the learning of French, through the fascination of français.

MRS. BAHNEMAN

The freshness of scenes from German travel posters, the cosiness of a cuckoo clock, the Old Worldliness of a beer stein, the familiarity of suspenders, a Black Forest doll, and a fairy tale book came to life through the comprehension of German, through the delight of deutsch.

CREATIVE ARTS ENCOURAGED STUDENT EXPRESSION

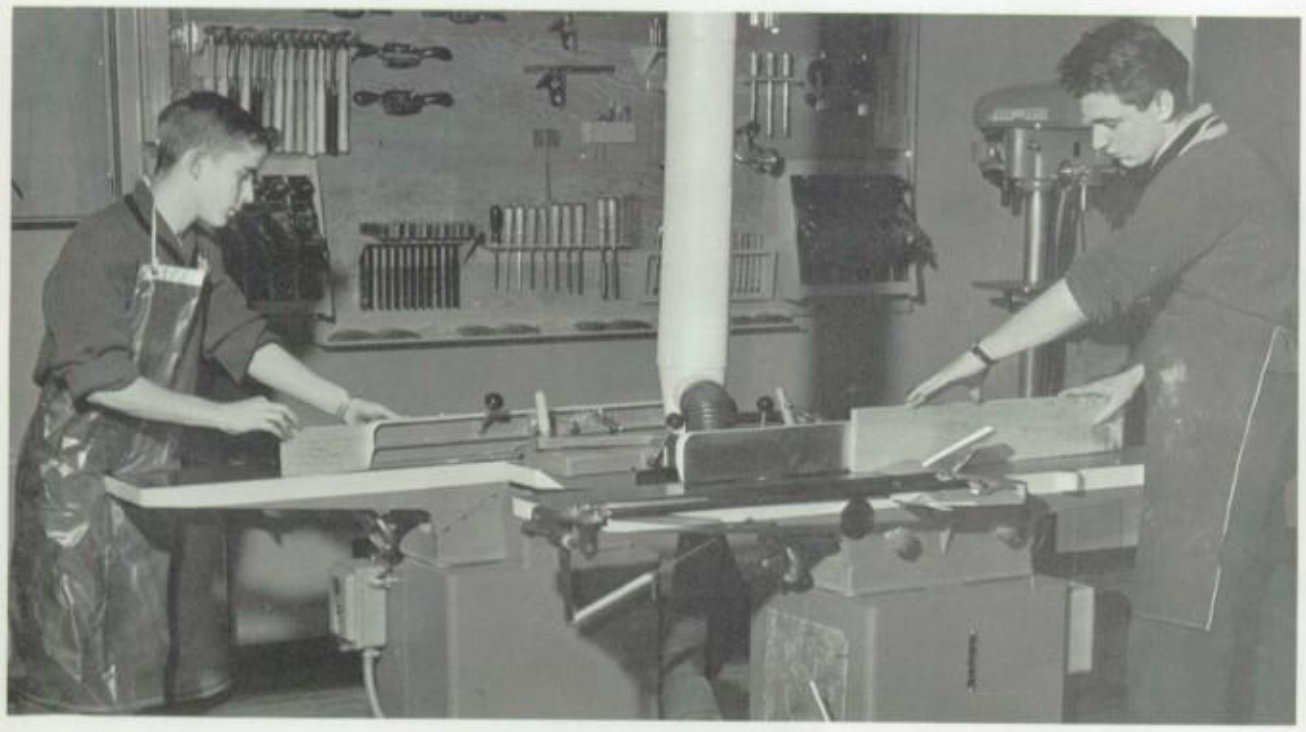
Pottery created by beginners was displayed in D-Wing.

Bill Hanaman and Leighton Holtz were "throwing pots," a step in the making of pottery.

Diane Gutowsky, Meredy Nelson, and Mary Gilman varnished an oil painting.

The band, led by drum major Dale Fields and majorettes Jane and Patty Mohaupt, added pep to our home football games.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS STUDENTS DEVELOPED IMPORTANT CONSTRUCTION SKILLS



Working on class projects, P. Lamb and C. Staehle guided wood through the buzz saw.

Mr. Engen directed A. Betz in the use of drawing equipment.

HOME ECONOMICS TAUGHT VARIED ARTS AND SKILLS

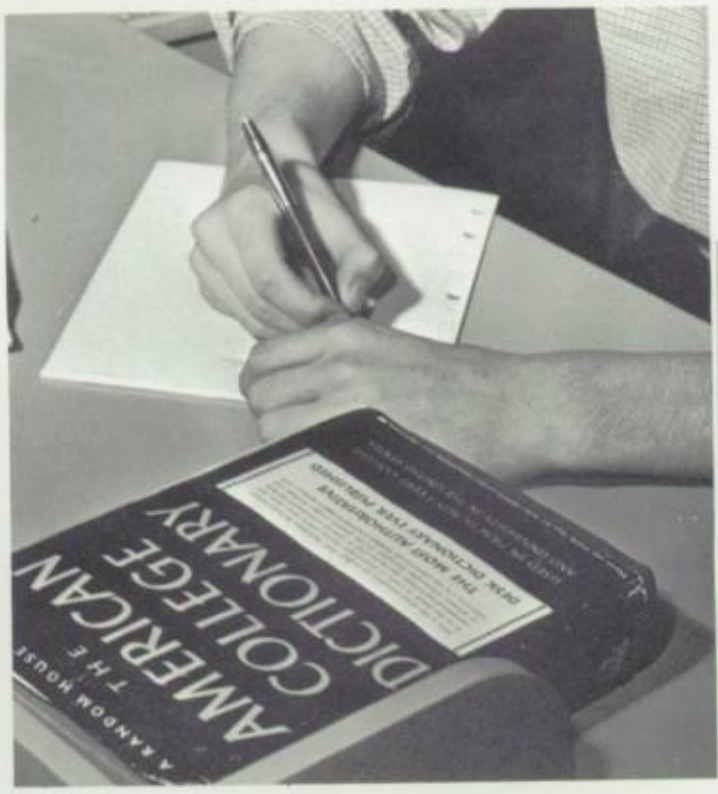
With an ordinary pumpkin, some bean pods, a can of gold spray and a little ingenuity, S. Smith and C. Forbes created a festive Halloween centerpiece.

Blocking in the basting, A. Wilson and M. Rohan completed another step in the construction of a skirt.

The Thanksgiving dinner having been planned and prepared by the advanced foods class, member M. Shulman demonstrated proper carving techniques.

READING — assignments provided a background from which to view a reader's own writings and a scope for understanding the viewpoints, the very ideals of others.

SPEAKING — practice created the opportunity for the speaker to use and develop his grasp of the art of communication.



WRITING — activities displayed the style and structural knowledge but most of all, an idea the writer wanted to get across.

STUDY OF BASIC LANGUAGE SKILLS PRODUCED BETTER COMMUNICATION

LISTENING — experiences made possible the interpretation of class work and the enrichment of class discussion through deepened understanding.

Miss Broetzman — Miss Fancher — Mr. Grassi — Mr. Heise

Mr. Herold — Miss Hoefs — Miss Jacobson — Miss Magdanz — Miss McCullough — Mrs. Shuler — Mrs. Veidemanis

Wet towels, the remnants of an active day, were heaped forlornly in an obscure corner.

Vanity, thy name is woman!

Oh, come on, Wendy! Are you sure you didn't know it was Wednesday?

GYM CLASSES MIXED FUN AND PHYSICAL FITNESS

As man was pitted against man, students developed strength and agility, important qualities in a physical fitness program.

Since thr days of medieval Europe, man has pursued his interests. In order to learn, in order to appreciate, in order to contribute, he has found it valuable to meet, to form clubs. Many times, these clubs have exemplified man's hobbies or avocations. Other times they have existed in order to perform a servdice. And still other times they have develoyed for the enrichment of academic subjects. In the days of knights student nations were a prominent part of university life. Later extra-curricular activities were well known in Old English public schools. And during the nineteenth century, social clubs, natural-history societies, and musical organizations were founded. It truly seems that the irrepressible urge for expression, development, and cooperation has survived through the years to become even more manifest in recent times.

SPIRIT, INDUSTRY, MARKED

GAIETY AND CHARM, NICOLET ACTIVITIES

Dale Jacobs, who as President of the Student Council presided at meetings and coordinated committees, accepted on behalf of the student body the Koran which Jill Romano presented to the school upon her return from an American Field Service experience.

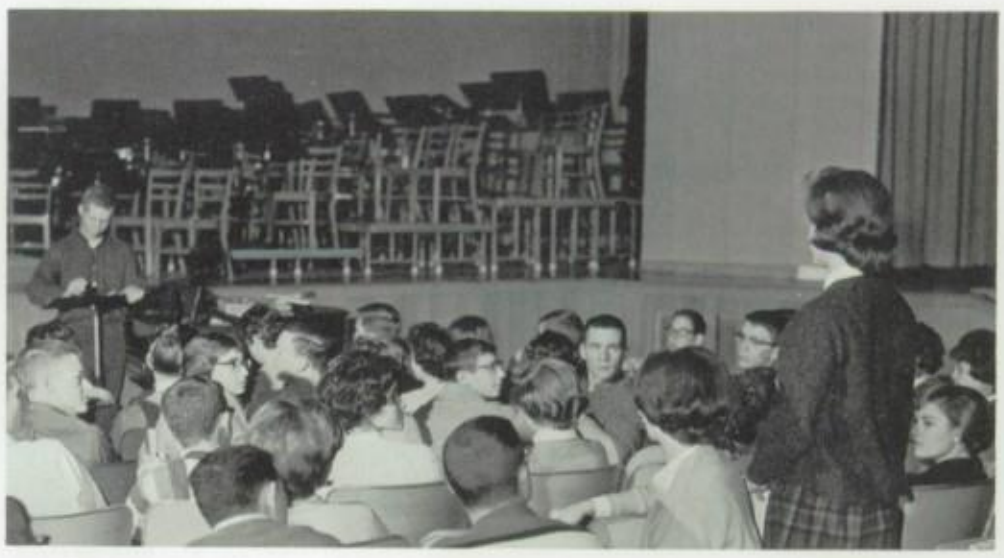
Vice-President Dick Podell made a last minute check as he prepared to submit to the council evaluations of his committees for the Alumni Basketball Tournament and for the Carnival.

STUDENT REPRESENTATIVES SOLVED PROBLEMS, COORDINATED ACTIVITIES, AND SPONSORED PROJECTS

Bringing student problems to council meetings was part of the responsibility of the homeroom delegates and delegates-at-large.

Counting dimes from doughnuts and pennies from pencil drives was part of Penny Mayerson's job as treasurer.

Secretary Pete Rauser took notes at all council meetings and handled all correspondence for the Student Council exchange program.



After motions were made, council members such as Patsy Rohde gave opinions and made suggestions for necessary action.

Youth Council members met and planned Dad's Date Night, Knight Klub dances, the Halloween dance, and the noon recreation program.

YOUTH COUNCIL PROVIDED NICOLET WITH A WELL-FILLED SOCIAL CALENDAR

The Decoy ... the Pony ... the Flying Circle added to the festive atmosphere of the Knight Klub dances.

FUTURE NURSES REGISTERED HIGH FOR SERVICE

C. Paul, Mrs. Jones, R.N., J. Osterbeck, L. Soper, A. Addy, and J. Haeberle brought joy to the aged in a home for senior citizens, created tray favors at Thanksgiving and Easter for Columbia Hospital, learned about their future careers from R.N.'s, and helped the school nurse during T.B. innoculations.

Aide Nancy Nusslock checked out books, stamped cards, and distributed overdue slips in the daily routine.

LIBRARY AIDE FILED, SHELVED, AND CATALOGED

FIRST ROW: N. Nusslock, J. Levinson, N. Levin; SECOND ROW: S. Manning, P. Ramano, J. Friebert.

Preparing books to be used, the entire staff lent a hand.

CHESSMEN MOVED STRATEGICALLY

Contemplating the ideal move are R. Reinhardt, K. Schultz, D. Sentz, A. Love, J. Stubbings, C. Hokanson, B. Horn, and S. Baird.

Silent watchers are R. Kurzon, J. Becker, J. Andrews, J. Andrews, J. Robbins, R. Reuss, D. Melnick, D. Borkon, R. Horn, J. Frank, and J. Rice as D. Neesly and R. Abendroth pit their skills against E. Weidner and R. Kay.

President Dan Neesly shows members the finer points of the game.

Nicolet's coach, players, and homecoming queen checkmate Homestead's men.

WORLD WAS RANGE OF RADIO CLUB

After earning their licenses through knowledge of morse code and radio operation, club members were assigned call numbers by the government. FRONT ROW: R. Johnson, KN9DQA; W. Schall, KN9IZV; S. Stein; J. Kansteiner, W9AHQ; BACK ROW: D. Carpenter W9AYR; D. Steiner, WN9AOI; J. Fischer, K9WHH; B. Kuntz, K9AQF; and J. Stehling, WN9DBD; not pictured: G. Schneider, WN9AWK.

Poised at the key, Don Carpenter concentrated on making contact, hoping to have the luck of a fellow operator who compared snowstorms with a boy in Alaska.

With this year's new antenna, the school's set could reach the whole globe. Two users were Brian Kuntz, vice-president, and Jon Fischer, president.

Sketching out plans and toying with new ideas, the respective editors, planners and co-ordinators of each month's issue, listened as managing editor Jeff Goodman, and advisor, Miss McCullough, gave directions and made suggestions. (left to right): Miss McCullough, M. Sherkow, F. Sharpe, N. Millman, M. Schwartzman, S. Kristal, E. Gill, J. Goodman.

After news editor Marty Schwartzman had checked with teachers, advisors, and club officers to see what important events were scheduled, he distributed assignments to his staff for the next deadline. M. Schwartzman, E. Gill, M. Winnig, T. Klinkert, B. Gilbert, P. Cohen, C. Geise, L. Fox.

The feature staff looked over a past issue of the Knights' Page to see how their page's weaknesses could be eliminated and to create new and varied articles for future editions. J. Friebert, T. Monfried, P. Vergeront, V. Vidoni, F. Sharpe, S. Kristal.

SCRIBES EDITED THE PAGE

Illustrators for the paper were N. Knopow, P. Romano, and B. Manheim. Sports writers B. Padway, B. Booth, and M. Sherkow reported athletic events.

Ready to deliver the finished and folded newspapers, members of the circulation staff counted out the right number of issues to be distributed to each class.

M. Dutcher, P. Cohen, E. Eich, M. Winnig, J. Williams, B. Erickson.

Planning the layout, designing the pages, and computing picture sizes, the art staff members, N. Cohen, K. Garrison, T. Seiden, B. Thatcher, S. Rose, T. O:to, S. Schaefer, M. Nelson worked after school and on Saturdays.

Diana Schultz, Jackie Werner, and Holly Bruskin, planned and penned the art illuminating the division pages.

As Mary Martinson and Rita Babbitz looked on, Jeff Howard, Sue Chapman, and Ron Trosper used the dictionary and thesaurus, checked picture request forms, and looked for the elusive name in old Nicolet yearbooks.

IN SPITE OF MANY MISSES, THE SHIELD WENT TO PRESS

After weeks of work by both staffs and Mr. Wacholtz, division page writers Linda Ochsner, Roger Kallman, Lucia Monfried, Sally Ruger, Betsy Baird, and Joan Edleman saw the final product.

Checking pictures against copy, proof-reading, and correcting errors, three experienced staff members, Laurie Rand, Bob Roscher, and Dick Podell, organized a page to send to the art staff.

FIRST KNIGHTERS MADE-UP CHARACTERS FOR A MAKE-BELIEVE WORLD

After their training in First Knighters' workshop, members applied makeup for The Importance of Being Earnest and Carousel.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE COUNCIL PLANNED PROJECT PANCAKE

Served by language club volunteers, guests lined up for stacks of steaming pancakes, cartons of cold milk, and cups of vanilla ice cream.

Food was forsaken as My-Ha portrayed the life of a flower in one of the dances from foreign countries staged by Nicolet students.

All the pancakes one could eat lured parents, students, and prospective students to Foreign Language Council's first International Pancake Supper.

At the annual French Club tea given to welcome new members, president Sue Biller presented objectives and outlined activities.

FRIVOLOUS FRENCHMEN FROLICKED

Adding the French touch to the pancake supper, our cheerleaders danced the traditional can-can.

Gaily costumed students tossed confetti at friends, drank punch containing colored ice-cubes, and did the twist at the Mardi Gras dance.

French club member joined participants of other foreign language clubs to create a storybook atmosphere for the Mardi Gras dance.

1961 executive board: M. Black (treasurer), B. Mayer (secretary), V. Copeland (second vice-president), W. Pease (first vice-president), S. Lernor (president). 1962 executive board: B. Chadwick (president), S. Strauss (first vice-president), K. Vogel (second vice-president), J. French (secretary), B. Brill (treasurer).

Snapping their fingers along with the beat of bongos, the clicking of castanets, and the strains of a flamenco guitar, club members were instructed in the execution of traditional Spanish folk dances.

Shouts of Olé from the homecoming crowd hailed a blue and white clad matador after he had lanced and defeated the Homestead bull, true to the triumphant spirit of a Spanish bullfight.

SPIRITED SPANIARDS FLAVORED NICOLET LIFE

As president Sue Lernor related stories of her trip to Spanish-speaking Mexico, listeners gained an insight into the history of Spain and the influence of its culture on the new world.

Transforming the cafeteria into storybook land, Spanish Club members contributed to the success of the Mardi Gras dance by painting and decorating with brilliantly colored streamers and balloons.

FIRST ROW: S. Moore, S. Redmond, K. Bloom, J. Friebert, T. Monfried, R. Kallman; SECOND ROW: J. Rusch, S. Soldon, J. Patzko, L. Frazin, A. Kaiser, K. Kochler, A. Hallstead; THIRD ROW: J. Weisfeld, T. Proffitts, S. Turim, J. Parrish, T. Wendorf, D. Soldon, J. Ruskin; FOURTH ROW: P. Maida, J. Chapman, L. Wilburg, J. Hopewell, P. Byrum, J. Rosenburg; FIFTH ROW: D. Schultz, E. Connell, T. Hokanson, Mrs. Bohnaman, advisor; SIXTH ROW: B. Goerne, S. Wells.

ROMAN TRADITION INSPIRED LATIN CLUB

The driving of Highland slaves to the Nicolet slave market foreshadowed the outcome of the homecoming game.

The leaders of Latin Club were Joyce Williams, Representative to the Foreign Language Council; Annette Stanton, Scriba; Bonnie Erickson, Consul; John Gettleman, Aedile; Cindy Rogge, Quaestor.

Every good German Club member knew how to do the Polka.

GERMAN TRADITIONS CAME TO LIFE AT NICOLET.

Officers, B. Steinmesch, D. Aschenbrenner, P. Schoenfeldt, R. Kaestner, and P. Korf, reminisced as they looked through the German Club scrapbook.

Roland Hofer, the German-speaking exchange student, told of his homelife in Eisentadt, Austria.

While singing "Ach du lieber Augustin" and "Oh Tannenbaum," the German Club members ate, drank, and were merry at the Christmas Party.

AFS DEDICATED WORLD MAP

Flags on the map donated by the class of 1960 indicate countries of past foreign exchange students. Stars show the countries visited by exchange students from our school.

Flags of many lands, multicolored flowers, and holiday cookies greeted AFS'ers and friends at the tea after the dedication.

Each having shared reminiscences of past foreign-exchange students with the audience, members of AFS then pronounced together the AFS pledge: "Walk together, talk together, all ye nations of the earth . . ."

UN CLUB PONDERED WORLD PROBLEMS

Members of the executive council were N. Cohen; P. Palakow, secretary-treasurer; B. Booth, vice-president; D. Nashban; D. Lebin; and E. Marck, president.

The UN Club discussed many problems facing the United Nations. Here, Lee Broberg led the discussion on the admission of Red China.

The world situation was grave, wasn't it?

FRONT ROW: M. Winnig, D. Klaus, S. Pluss, L. Solomon, M. Shulman, B. Manheim, J. Richards, M. Vergeront; SECOND ROW: S. Michelstetter, R. Kurzon, C. Goodman, J. Schrinsky, N. Siegal, B. Drover, P. Mayerson, R. Seelig, A. Love; THIRD ROW: J. Berman, D. Hoffman, K. Schreiber, K. Schreiber, L. Fox, D. Harris, W. Schindler, N. Mayer.

With the individual aid of Forensics advisor, Mr. Heise, Betty Drover perfected her selection.

FORENSICS SOUGHT BETTER COMMUNICATION THROUGH ANALYSIS OF LITERATURE AND IDEAS.

After receiving a theme, Bill Schindler and Barb Manheim did intensive research to find the selection best suited for them.

Through critical group evaluation, speakers, such as vice president Ken Schreiber, were able to improve delivery; and listeners, such as Lenny Fox, Nancy Siegal, and Jim Berman, profited from analyzing and criticizing.

During competition, president Bob Kurzon obtained the good speaking form gained from observations and practice in Forensics.

HALL MONITORS POLICED, CHECKED, AND DIRECTED

Front and center, Barb Brill directed a mother to a parent-teacher conference.

Bob Reuss drew the tough job — keeping lunch hour students out of C-wing.

NICOLET HOSTS SERVED AT ALL AUDITORIUM EVENTS

Station two checked out okay.

Nicolet welcomed the welcomers.

F.B.L.A. MEMBERS VARIED THEIR ACTIVITIES

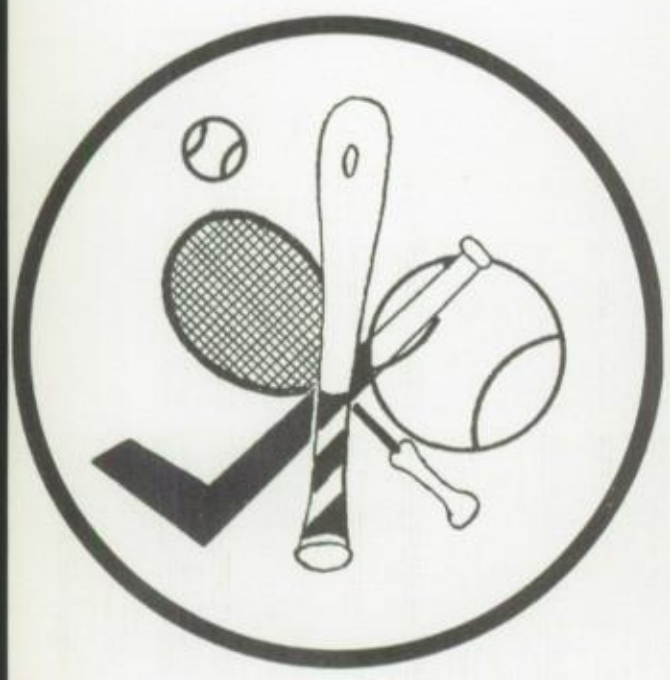
A strumming guitar, a blaring clarinet, a beating drum — the result was the twist.

At the annual F.B.L.A. convention, members participated in speaking and spelling contests, entered into discussions, gained ideas from exhibits, and shared information in debates.

Three five-hole wide-ruled pads, one eversharp pencil, two shorthand notebooks, one ebony art pencil, three pocket folders, index cards, lab apron, kleenex, eraser — if all the lists are this long . . . oh, well it's someone else's problem to figure out who the money belongs to.

Officers: D. Teple, K. Olson, S. Cieslewicz, J. Michaelis, S. Scheil, Miss Missling, advisor; SECOND ROW: B. Graef, J. Maxon, K. Model, M. Martin, K. Nelson, W. Pease, S. Soldan, L. Meredith; THIRD ROW: B. Gill, J. Foulks, E. McCarter, L. Wajcieschowski, S. Tarnow, S. Schroeder, S. Lakue, S. Tank, K. Bretsch; FOURTH ROW: D. Blankenburg, S. Vieau, N. Tischer, A. Robinson, M. Barnes, C. Andrews, E. Mosner, M. Cesarec, J. Eichler, M. Addey; FIFTH ROW: B. Brown, M. Hahn, J. Flora, B. Feldmann, J. Jakuboski, P. Flach, S. Clausing, L. Howell; SIXTH ROW: B. Nobles, A. Addey, M. Frank, M. Rapkin.

All year round the Nicolet Girls' Association Council — Jill Gerlach, Kathy Gelzer, Kathy Betz, Sally Redlin, Kitty Miller, Barb Brill, Nancy Knopow, Joanne Peckarsky, Pat Murphy, Karen Koshakow — scheduled activities, officiated games, recorded results, and planned for championship meets.



Thus in fall hockey players buckled shin guards in preparation for a brisk contest.

NGA ARRANGED ATHLETIC ACTIVITIES

In winter girls leaped for the rebound in a fast-moving championship game.

In spring a Nicolet gymnast perfected backflips during a scheduled workout.

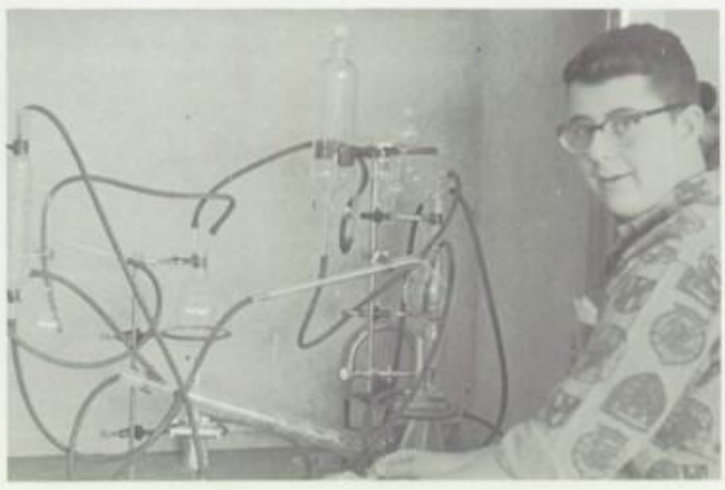
LECTURES INFORMED AND INSPIRED SCIENCE STUDENTS

Dr. Adolf Miller, speaking to the Science Club on "Science in Today's World," stressed the impact of science on modern civilization.

At the Science Forum, Dr. Korfhage lectured on measuring and maintaining the quality of food.



The unidentified object last seen with Jim Sernovitz had to be approached with caution.

The peppy girls in Knights' Court had fun this year disguising themselves.

For a Thanksgiving pep assembly they became fat turkeys and hungry pilgrims.

ALL THE SCHOOL WAS THEIR STAGE

Revealing their artistic side, they painted colorful posters to announce coming athletic events.

The frightening gangsters collecting money for the Penny Drive were really Knights' Court members.

While hungry students waited in line, busy waitresses rushed to serve them at the annual Pizza Hop.

CHEERLEADERS WERE OUT FOR VICTORY

Junior Varsity cheerleaders P. Smith, A. Baldi, B. Rosenthal, and M. Rylander spurred the JV's to win.

VARSITY CLUB INITIATED NEW PROGRAMS AND NEW MEMBERS

Earning a letter wasn't enough; prospective members of Varsity Club had to go through a trying initiation to be able to wear the golden "N."

"Assume the position!"

AQUA-KNIGHTS PRACTICED FOR PRECISION

STUDENTS PREVIEWED THE TEACHING PROFESSION

Meeting with Mr. Bakalars, the executive board scheduled their meetings, arranged for well-known speakers to address the club, and planned their visits to the neighboring grade schools to listen, observe, and learn. Mr. Bakalars, J. Mor (treasurer), K. Remy (president), W. Pease (secretary), C. Post (vice-president).

BIOLOGY CLUB'S ACTIVITIES TAUGHT APPRECIATION OF OUTDOORS

Dr. Fred Hammerstrom briefed club members on observing the "booming" of prairie chickens.

A good club member, Melanie attended every meeting.

Snowshoeing was fun, but nothing beats eating.

If the measure of a man were the size of his shoes, Bruce would have it made.

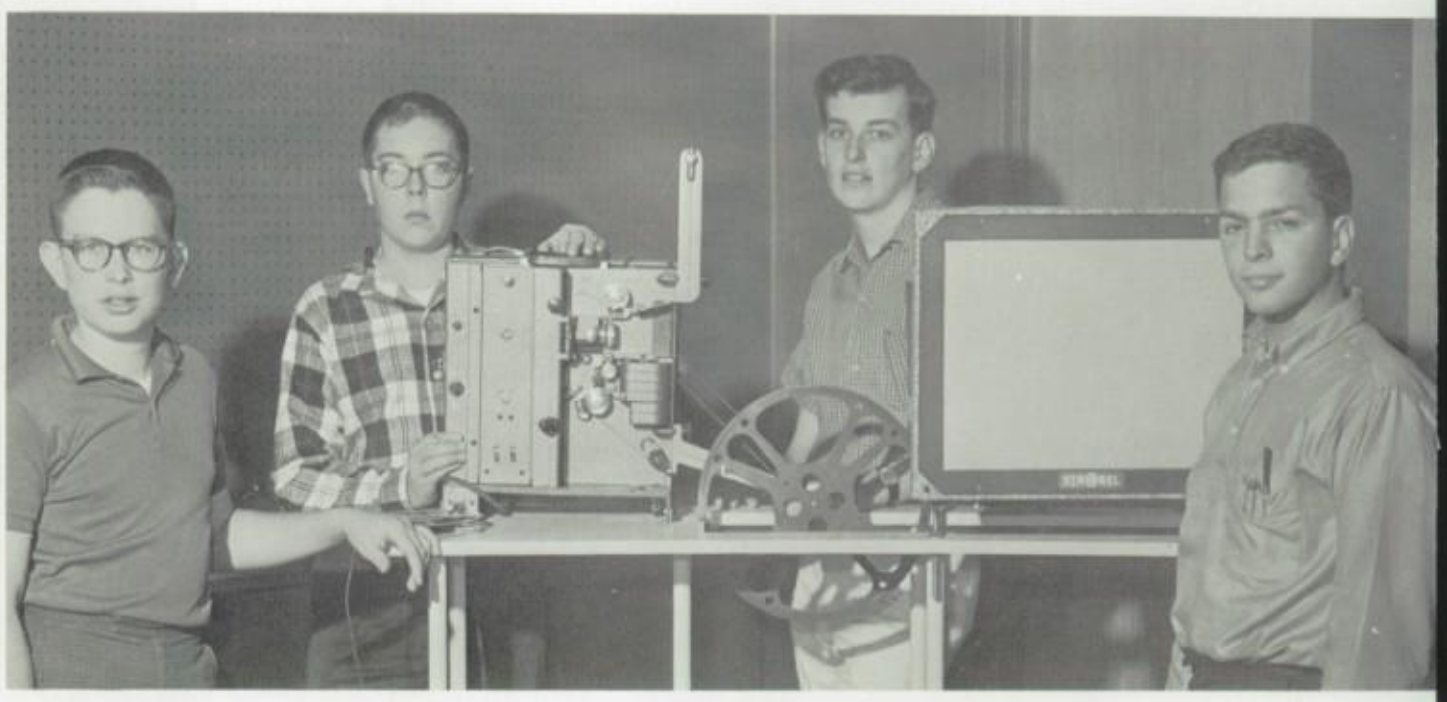
These young housekeepers shared the honor of the cleanest dormitory at Trees for Tomorrow camp.

During the annual canoe trip, club members relaxed among the sandburs on the banks of the Wisconsin River.

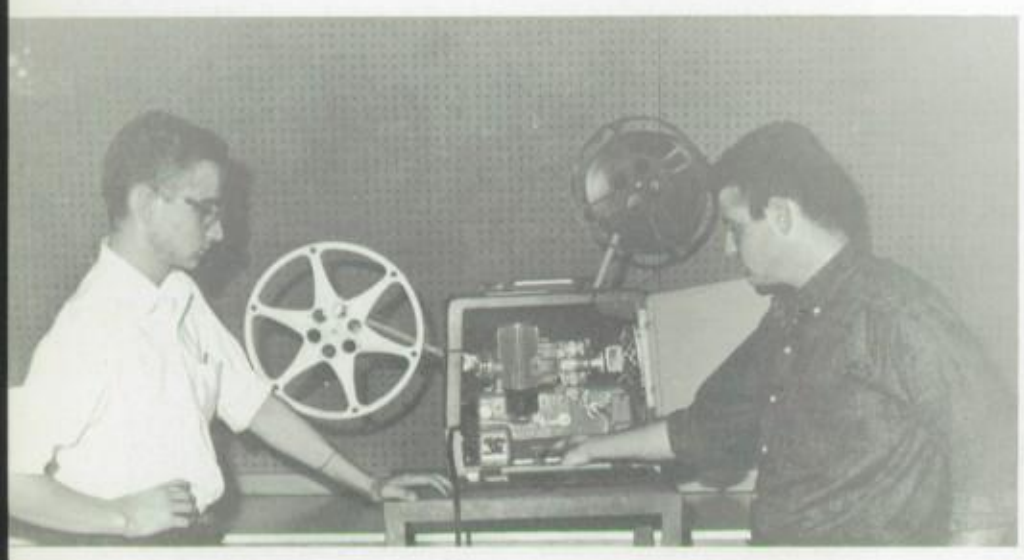
They paddled their own canoe.

AUDIO-VISUAL AIDS
BOYS SERVED EDUCATION

By pushing films and projectors to the classroom, a club member fulfilled a responsibility and aided education.



Ready for duty were S. Manning, J. Scibby, D. Robertson, and B. Kurzon.



In order to have someone running projectors in future years, senior Dan Borkon helped freshman Ron Bryan learn operation of machines.

Bill Shultz, center, molded the birds' wings while Sandy Cianciolo, Dennis Clyde, and Bill Reedy assisted him.

Making decorative ducks was this year's Industrial Arts Club project. Here, Gary Miller watched Tom Rineck use the drill press on the bodies of the ducks.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS CLUB CREATED MODEL DUCKS

After cutting out the ducks, Don Iannerelli and Carl Staehle sanded down the rough edges.

On knighthood's proving ground, loud huzzahs greeted the crash of a lance on a shield. Colored banners waved; and streamers, often blue and white, flew from the helmets of the knights engaged in contests--jousting, tilting, or man-to-man combat--to determine which was the better knight. So, too, loud hurrahs resound at Nicolet, but here the crash is one of cymbals rather than weapons. Blue and white colors fly once more, now in the forms of pom-poms and shakeroos, as the Knights score a touchdown, sink a basket, break the ribbon, or win the set.

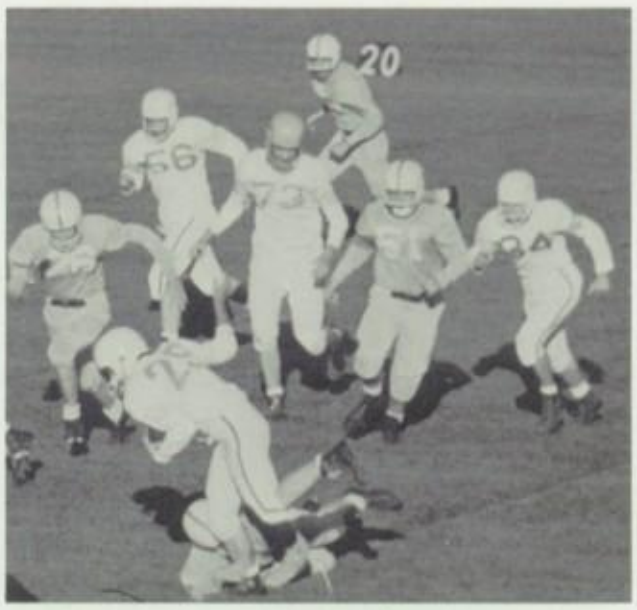
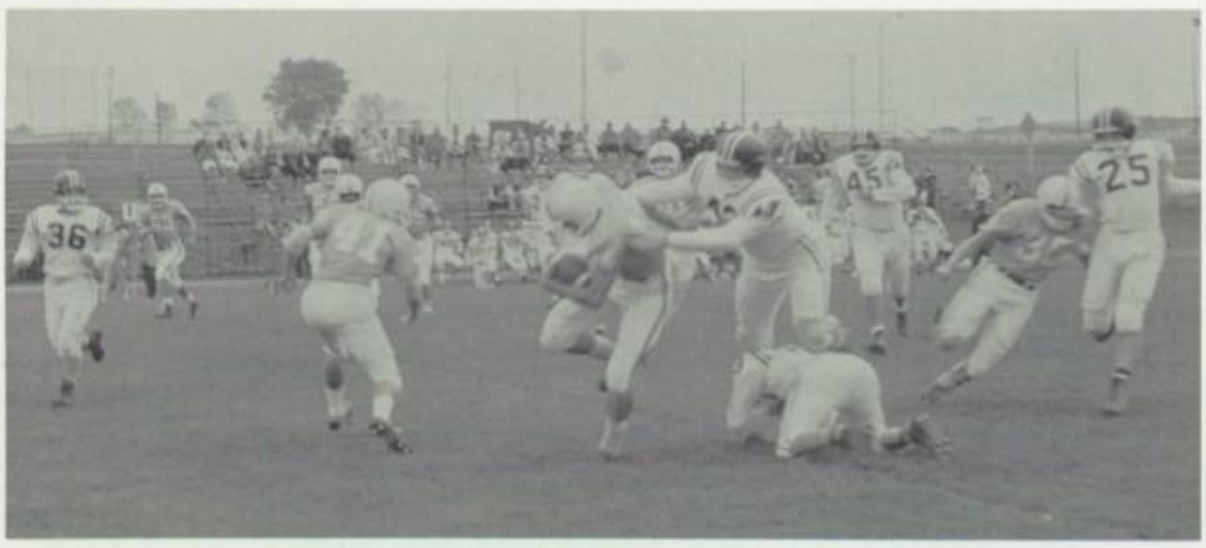
The passing combination of Dick Rymer to Tom Stidham, which produced 18 completions, clicked again for 6 points.



A strong defense, that allowed only 5 points per game, stopped this end sweep for no game.



Dick Rymer broke away from a tackler for a long gain.

For his service to the team, Doug Hart earned a manager's letter.

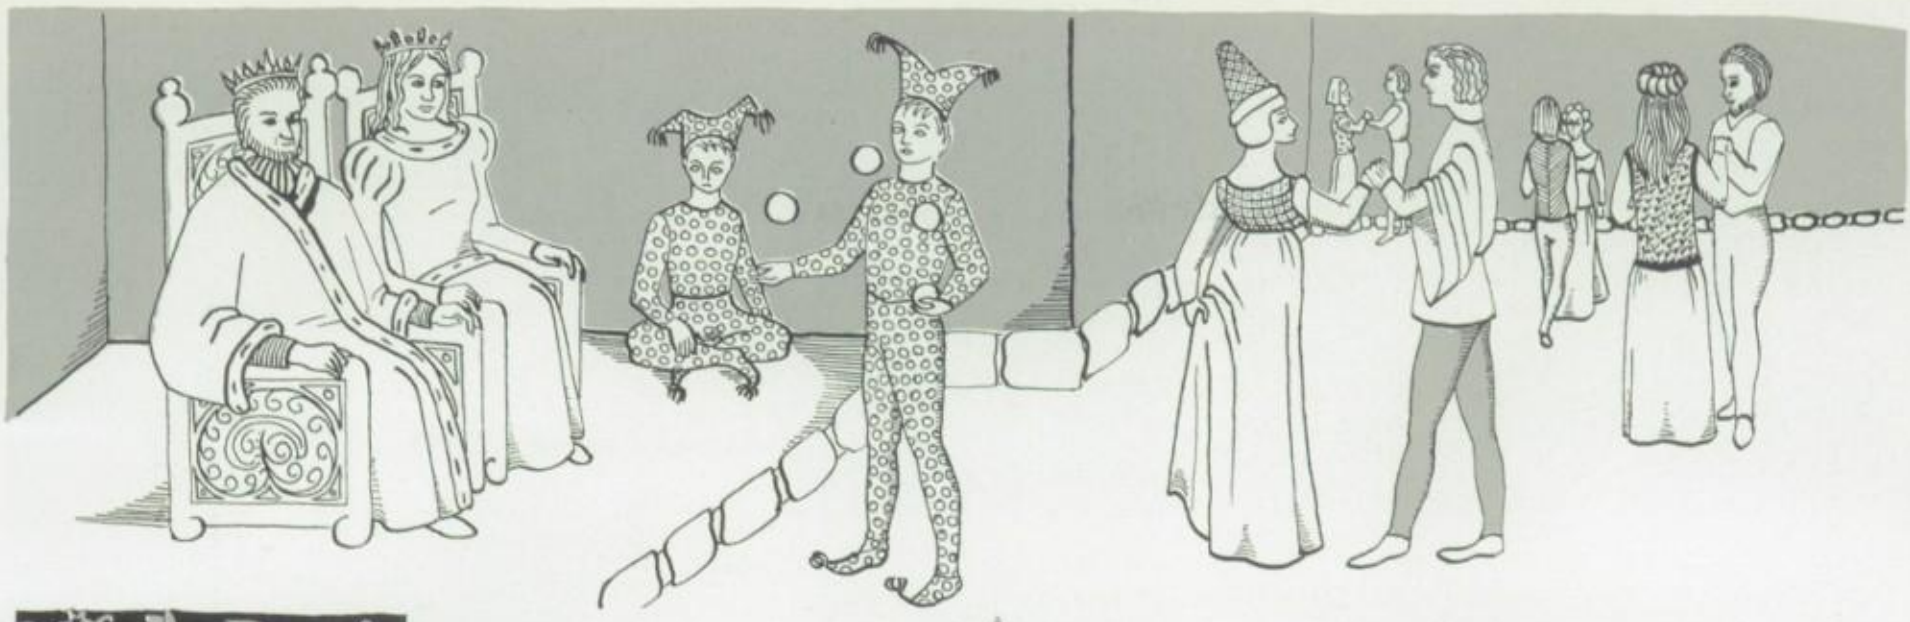
Conference Standing — 3rd place
Sectional Standing — 6th place (out of 10)



The school year brings many special events, the first of which is homecoming-a time for alumni to see old friends and recall the past. Yet all special events retain a flavor of the past. One can imagine the wandering medieval players rehearsing their lines, designing props, and putting on make-up in much the same way that Nicolet actors and actresses prepared The Importance of Being Earnest. Nicolet's American Field Service Carnival holds the same excitement and welcome break for students as the annual fairs of Champagne held for the country folk who attended for companionship, news, and amusement. And the nobles in medieval England and France enjoyed daneing the carol or danza before the king and queen as much as teenagers today enjoy doing the latest rock and roll steps at the Morp, the Homecoming Dance, or Satan's Stomp. The dances, the carnival, the plays-all bring memories of a wonderful time, memories of special events.

Over and over, Morpsters whirled and kicked to the Flying Circle, a native Israeli dance.

Surrounded by out-of-date newspapers, left-over prom decorations, and dented garbage cans, guests in their comfortable clothes and worn socks and tennis shoes danced merrily to the music of old records.

The informal atmosphere of Morp Alley was enjoyed by four "bums" lying in one of the littered corners.

Walking under ladders and stepping on cracks, Morpsters defied Friday the 13th at the first Morp.

PROM WAS A MAGNOLIA GARDEN, A RIVERBOAT, A SOUTHERN MEMORY

Belles and beaux had a wonderful time.

"I dub thee knight" were the words a squire heard as he entered the service of the Round Table after fourteen years of training. Likewise, a fair damsel noted for her charm and talents was singled out to serve as her queen's lady-in-waiting. For special events, minstrels and poets, esteemed, above all others, were asked to perform before the king. And scholars, honored for their knowledge, were brought to court to instruct the nobility or came to the new universities that led to the rebirth of learning.

The medieval knight was recognized by the coat of arms engraved on his shield. Today, honor-winners wear the pin that denotes membership in National Honor Society, Tri-M, or Quill and Scroll. Likewise a few outstanding upperclassmen are distinguished above others by the Harvard and Wellesley Book, the D.A.R., the Badger Boy, and the Mortarboard awards. Outstanding Nicolet Knights are named as all-conference players or state finalists. Today, as in the past, honors are given to the deserving.

Jill Romano, participant in the A.F.S. Amercans Abroad, brought from Pakistan, along with memories of sacrificial lambs, strange religious rites, and teeming market places, the art of draping a shalwar chemise, a Pakistani national costume.

The portraits lining the halls of medieval castles, the plaster busts decorating private gardens, the oil painted miniatures carried by courtiers were means of displaying the likenesses of friends and relatives during the middle ages. These images required many sittings and hours of artistic effort, hours when the only movement was the stroking of a brush on canvas or the chipping of a chisel on stone. Weeks, perhaps months later, the masterpiece could be viewed. Today these portraits have largely been replaced by photographs, the plaster busts by impressionistic wire sculpture, and the miniatures by the wallet-size picture. The hours of posing have been reduced to a smile, a flash of lights, and the click of a camera. Days, even minutes later the result, a photograph, can be viewed in a friend's wallet, on a family mantel, or in the pages of a school yearbook.
